Child Ban Passes Senate

Measure Makes Offense Misde-meanor Punishable by Fine of $50 to $100

ALBANY, March 28.—The bill of Senator Nathan Straus Jr., of New York, making it a misdemeanor for landlords to refuse to rent houses, or apartments, to families having children, passed the Senate to-night.

The bill amends chapter 88 of the Laws of 1909 by inserting a new section, to be known as 2,041, which reads:

"Discrimination against children in dwelling houses: Any person, firm, or corporation, in any city, owning or having in charge any apartment house, tenement house, or other building, used for dwelling purposes, who shall refuse to rent any, or part of any such building to any person or family solely on the ground that such person, or family, has or have a child, or children, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and, on conviction thereof, shall be punished by a fine of not less than $50, nor more than $100 for each offense."

The Assembly to-night passed the annual appropriation bill by a unanimous vote. The debate on the measure was brief.

The Stitt bill, appropriating $5,000,000 toward the construction of the New York-New Jersey vehicular tunnel was advanced to final order of passage.

Crawled Along Coping

The permits were locked in the vault on Tuesday evening when the office closed, and were missed when the vault was opened on the following morning. It is believed that the thief entered the director's office some time during the night by crawling along a narrow coping between the fire escape and one of the windows of the office.

An investigation is being conducted among employees of Mr. O'Connor's department, it is understood. No further information could be obtained on this point, as the director has been away for several days and will not return until to-day.

Judge Julius M. Mayer yesterday held a man who said his name was Morris Cohen in $2.500 bail on a charge of falsely representing himself to be a revenue agent in an attempt to extort $1.500 from John G. Nugen, proprietor of a saloon in Forty-second Street.

Permit Theft 'Inside' Job

It is believed that the recent theft of 500 permits to purchase liquor from the office of Charles R. O'Connor, Federal state director of prohibition. Was an "inside job." A prohibition official who refused to be quoted said yesterday that the blank permits were removed from the steel vault in the director's office evidently by some one having knowledge of the combination, as the safe had been closed again and there was no sign that it had been tampered with.
